Be strong, get well and don't let the bullies get you down.

Hi Abdulrahman - It's Alex here from the BBC. I was wondering if I could interview you about what happened to you at the boston marathon?

It would be an easy interview - just were you talk about your feelings?

Best

Alex

Hi. I am a journalist with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. We would like to do a story of your experience at the marathon -- and all the false accusations that you were involved. Understand you are still in hospital and hope you are doing ok. Would it be possible to give you a call today for about 10 minutes? I can be reached at 1-416-205-5577.
Thanks

Dear Abdulrahman,

Assalam Aliikum.

My name is Wajahat Ali, a writer from the U.S. and frequent contributor to Salon, Guardian and Huffington Post.

I hope you are well. I was reaching out to talk to you in light of this recent controversy in Boston. I am sure you are exhausted, and I do not mean to intrude or be disrespectful. If you would be open to discuss the matter, I'd love to share your words and side of the story with our audience.

Do let me know whenever you have the time please

Sincerely,
Wajahat

Hi Abdulrahman,
I bet you are sick of getting interview requests, but I am writing on behalf of a major Japanese Television network called Tokyo Broadcasting System.
My co-worker tried to contact you before, but just in case, I wanted to leave you a reminder.
We are trying to do a story for Japan about how people like Fox News and on Facebook were too fast to start pointing fingers, so if you are interested, we would love to come meet you and hear what you think about this whole bad experience.
Thanks for your time, and I hope to hear from you soon.

You are Osama Bin Laden's son....why are you here? Do you believe as he does? My husband works for the US government and told me about you, so I had to ask you myself.
